

1. Installing and setting up the game

- Download and install the game on your computer.
- Once the game is installed, launch it and select "Start Game" from the main menu.
- Enter your name and you can choose to play either against an opponent or against the PC.
- Select your role as either a monopolist or a competitor, and proceed to the game board.

1. Understanding the game board

- The game board will be displayed on your computer screen, and it will consist of different spaces that represent different properties, utilities, and other areas of the game.
- The spaces are colour-coded blocks representing what street you are in currently.
- Each space will have a corresponding card that provides more information about the property or utility, such as its cost, rent, and special rules.

1. Playing the game

- Once you play you can register and choose to play against another player or an AI, for the AI you have to choose your difficulty.
- After registering, Player 1 has to choose to be a monopolist or competitor.
- The game starts with you rolling the dice and moving your token on the board. You can choose to purchase properties or utilities you land on, or you can choose to pay rent to the computer-controlled opponent who owns the spaces.
- The computer-controlled opponent will also be playing the game, and they will be trying to acquire as many properties and utilities as possible to increase their monopoly power.

1. Winning the game

- Your goal as a competitor is to break up the monopolies and promote competition in the market. To do this, you must acquire enough properties and utilities in each industry.
- The goal of the monopolist is to acquire as much property and utility as possible to increase their monopoly power and control the market.
- The game ends when you or the opponent goes bankrupt.

1. Tips for playing

- Try to balance between acquiring properties and paying rent to avoid bankruptcy.
- Pay attention to the colour coded blocs and try to acquire properties and utilities in each street to increase your chances of winning.
- Check the leaderboard table to see how you are performing compared to other players.

Have fun playing Antimonopoly on your computer!
